Sex Offender Education and Treatment Program (SOETP): Based on a cognitive-behavioral and relapse prevention model of assessment and treatment. Evidence-based treatment and best practices assist the offender in managing sexually exploitative behavior, thereby reducing the risk of re-offending. Treatment components include acknowledging responsibility for offending behavior, recognizing and modifying cognitive distortions, managing deviant sexual urges and impulses, developing victim empathy, enhancing social competencies, and acquiring relapse prevention skills. Participants are expected and encouraged to take an active role in treatment by attending weekly psycho-educational classes, group therapies, relapse prevention groups, quarterly treatment plan reviews, and completing specific homework assignments.	Inside Out Dad Parenting Class: An evidence-based program, proven to develop pro-fathering attitudes, knowledge, and skills, giving fathers the necessary strategies to prepare them for release. The core program sessions feature unique exercises and research-based tools and techniques to encourage fathering from the inside. The reentry sessions help fathers prepare for responsibilities and challenges they will face on the outside. Cognitive Restructuring: Prepares residents for reentry through training in a variety of life skills (S.A.G.E): Led by a Therapist, provides a range of Substance Abuse Education and Treatment Services Recovery Support Specialist (R.S.S.) led by a Therapist: Inmates are prepared to teach and facilitate groups with other offenders about substance abuse and recovery.
Moderate Substance Abuse Treatment: Help inmates address their addiction issues and learn to live drug-free, prosocial lifestyles. The program is delivered by licensed counselors and involves 100 hours of treatment to be completed in 6 months, and its curriculum includes up to 3 phases. The first phase uses a program called Living in Balance that educates inmates on concepts such as addiction, triggers and cravings, planning for sobriety, spirituality, skills for reducing stress, and relapse prevention. The second phase uses a program called Cognitive-Behavioral Interventions for Substance Abuse that uses CBT to teach cognitive restructuring, emotional regulation, social skills and problem solving, and behavioral practices. The third phase is for female inmates only and uses a workbook called Women in Recovery: Understanding Addiction to address topics such as gender roles and identity, how addiction impacts women versus men, and how addiction impacts sexuality and intimate relationships	Courage to Change -Change Companies: The Courage to Change Interactive Journaling® System is an evidence-based supervision/case management model developed in collaboration with several United States Probation Offices. Through the use of this cognitive-behavioral Interactive Journaling® System and interaction with their support team, participants address their individual problem areas based on a criminogenic risk and needs assessment. Implementation is flexible and can be customized based on risk, responsivity and programming needs. By personalizing the information presented in the Journals to their own circumstances, participants will develop a record of their commitments and progress throughout probation and a roadmap to success in their efforts to make positive behavior change
Moral Recognition Therapy (MRT): MRT is based on the idea that a person's thoughts, beliefs, and attitudes are the main factors that determine their behavior. It's intended to help inmates improve their moral reasoning, decision-making, and pro-social behavior. MRT is also used to treat people with drug use, alcohol abuse, gambling addiction, and other compulsive behaviors. It's also effective in treating people with anger management issues.	Go Further: A program that helps inmates reenter society by providing educational courses and training workshops. The program is based on the idea of a highway, using a common framework and terminology to help everyone understand the reentry process. The program's goal is to reduce recidivism by providing inmates with access to training and education in areas like behavior modification and career counseling.
Reentry (Merging Two Worlds): The Arizona Department of Corrections (ADC) modified the ASU M2W curriculum to assist adult offenders with their re-entry into the community. The ADC Re-entry curriculum outlines steps to take before release as well as steps to take after release. The information included in this curriculum assists inmates in writing resumes, developing life-skills, assessing services such as transportation, planning a budget, obtaining employment, furthering education, outlining employment strategies, interviewing techniques, parenting skills, health care services and many other resources. It is designed to be delivered in 8 weeks.	T. Gorski Relapse Prevention: This model allows individuals to identify and address early warning signs of relapse through the following nine steps: stabilization, assessment, relapse education, identifying warning signs, managing warning signs, recovery planning, inventory training, family involvement, and follow up. The Triple Parenting Program: Covers parenting tips and strategies for managing relationships between inmates and their children. The Red Program: A specialized program aimed at addressing substance abuse issues through counseling and group support, helping inmates recover from addiction.
S.M.A.R.T. Recovery: SMART Recovery is a fresh approach to addiction recovery. SMART stands for Self-Management and Recovery Training. This is more than an acronym: it is a transformative method of moving from addictive substances and negative behaviors to a life of positive self-regard and willingness to change	Second Chance Center: For inmates who are soon to be released. This is a pre-release program that helps incarcerated inmates to be successful in their lives upon release. Convergent Case Management (CCM): Allows for a Case Manager to work with the inmate and assist the inmate in reaching realistic goals upon release

The program is designed to teach inmates about the impact their crimes have had on their victims. RDAP (substance abuse-intensive/moderate treatment): A unit-based residential program that involves daily group programming activities, individual counseling, and a great deal of peer-based interaction. The program takes 9-12 months to complete. Continuum of Care Program: Pairs inmates with Transitional Case Managers during their last 2–12 months of incarceration to help them set goals for their future. After release, inmates are introduced to a Post Release Case Manager who works with them for up to one year
Recovery Support Specialist (R.S.S): Led by a therapist, Inmates are prepared to teach and facilitate groups with other offenders about substance abuse and recovery.	Changing Offender Behavior: A complete evidence-based system based on research demonstrating that antisocial thoughts and cognitive skill deficits are causally related to criminal behavior. The program targets these antisocial thoughts and skill deficits by using a behavioral approach that includes modeling, rehearsing, and rewarding. Through this program component, participants will learn: to identify situations, thoughts and feelings that are high risk for criminal behavior. to replace cognitive distortions with rational thoughts. problem-solving, coping and social skills. to plan alternative, responsible responses to replace antisocial responses to situations. to evaluate their behavior and reinforce their responsible behaviors.
